

HOW OUR SERVICES ARE ADJUSTING TO THE NEEDS OF THE COMMUNITY

COVID-19 may have the world at a bit of a stand still, but the needs of our community have never been so great. Changes to routines, excessive downtime and lack of structure may be difficult for your child or youth, and potentially causing dysregulation.

The Autism and Behavioural Services program at ROCK is committed to providing families and clients with flexible, innovative services during this challenging time. Although COVID-19 has resulted in social distancing, we are lucky enough to be able to remain connected through technology, and continue to provide services through telephone and/or secure video conferencing.

Our programming is based on the principles of Applied Behaviour Analysis (ABA). All services are available for clients between the ages of 9-21.

SERVICE PLANNING & OBSERVATION - FREE!

We understand that service decisions can be overwhelming, especially right now. Our service strives to eliminate the guesswork for families.

Our knowledgeable clinicians can assist you with making decisions around goals, determining if a digital platform is right for your child, and what service model is best suited for your family. To ensure peace of mind around decisions, a free virtual observation is also available.
